Council clean up

Heavily parked residential side roads across Bexley are the focus of the Council's latest initiative to help the borough look its best.

Since the beginning of the month, London Borough of Bexley and its contractor Serco have been making a concerted effort to sweep some side roads that normally cannot be cleaned properly due to parked cars.

The Council put up notices and wrote to residents in selected roads in Belvedere, Bexleyheath, Erith, Northumberland Heath, Sidcup and Welling, asking them to keep their roads clear on the days the Council's cleaning team arrive to clean up.

Now in its third week, the response from residents has been very positive and many roads are showing the benefit of their clean sweep.

Cabinet member Cllr Peter Craske watched the deep clean of South Gypsy Road in Welling on Monday (23 October): "We're more than halfway through the deep clean and I am really grateful to residents for the way they have worked with us to help bring their streets up to standard.

"We know how much local people value having clean streets, so I am delighted that our good financial management has meant we have been able to find the money for this initiative."

Work on the deep clean will continue through to 6 November.
